

ESAI Postgraduate Researcher of Year 2018 Announced

30th.

Conall Holohan from National University of Ireland, Galway is winner of the ESAI 2018 Postgraduate of the Year Award. His entry based on his PhD research project on "The Anaerobic Digestion of Fats: exploring microbial technological solutions" was of exceptional high calibre.

Thank you to all the entrants for the "ESAI 2018 Postgraduate of the Year Award" - all of the entrants were of a very high standard. We encourage MSc and PhD researchers, in the final year of their research study, to apply for the ESAI Postgraduate Award in 2019. The competition will be launched at Environ 2019 in IT Carlow and closes on September
